Homosapien

Homo sapiens (from Latin: homō, 'human being' + sapiēns, 'wise, sensible, judicious') is the only extant human species, all of whose members are of the subspecies Homo sapiens sapiens. The name is Latin for wise man, and was introduced in 1758 by Carl Linnaeus (who is himself the lectotype for the species).. Extinct species of the genus Homo include Homo erectus (extant from roughly 2 to 0.1 ...

Homo sapiens - Wikipedia

The species that you and all other living human beings on this planet belong to is Homo sapiens. During a time of dramatic climate change 300,000 years ago, Homo sapiens evolved in Africa. Like other early humans that were living at this time, they gathered and hunted food, and evolved behaviors that helped them respond to the challenges of survival in unstable environments.

If you met a Neanderthal, the first thing you might notice is that your hominin cousin was a bit shorter than your average human. Neanderthals were both shorter and thicker than we are, so while you might beat them on the basketball court, they could probably out-arm-wrestle you. The next thing you'd probably notice is a broad and flaring nose with large nostrils.
